

Listening

Encourage your child to really listen to sounds, including different types of music. Do they like it? How does it make them feel? Is it happy or sad?

Remembering

Singing the same nursery rhymes, over and over again, is hugely important for children to then remember and sing entire songs by themselves. This will also lead to the art of them making up their own songs too.

Instruments

Although it can be a little noisy, teaching your child how to use musical instruments with increasing control and appropriateness, can also help them in using them to express their feelings and ideas.

